2026 PECOS LEAGUE SALUTE: James Prockish, Alpine Cowboys

If you go to the back of this Guide and look at the Career Records page for batters, you'll see one name appear consistently, often at the top of the list: James Prockish. Last year, the 30-year-old Idaho native completed his ninth Pecos League season as the loop's all-time leader in no fewer than six offensive categories, including hits (450), doubles (67) and RBIs (323) to accompany a .355 batting average over 358 career games. That plate dominance did not come immediately, however.

A 6'2" 210-pounder, Prockish played one season at NCAA Division III Augsburg University in Minnesota before making his Pecos League debut as a catcher with Monterey in 2017, batting .233 in 16 games. His next two summers with the Amberjacks included a .235 average in 2018 and a .299 mark a year later with a combined 7 homers and 95 RBIs in 111 games, giving no hint of what was to come after the Covid-cancelled 2020 campaign.

Reappearing in Alpine for 2021 as a third baseman, Prockish broke out in a big way by batting .384 with a league-best 83 hits and 16 two-baggers for the Cowboys to kick off a five-year run in which he has batted .395, including an astounding .454 in 2023 (finishing second to Evan Antonellis, who hit .477 for Austin and Lancaster that year). Last season, Prockish earned All-Pecos laurels with his second consecutive .387 average augmented by 11 homers and 67 ribbies in 49 contests.

When the decision was made to salute a player in the league's first Media Guide, James Prockish was an easy choice. He has personified the Pecos League with his perseverance after a slow career start, quiet determination to improve every season and most of all his love for the game. You have to have heart to play year after year in the Pecos League and Prockish may well be the career leader in that category as well.

THE PECOS LEAGUE 2010-26: Rising From Humble Beginnings

The Pecos League is an independent baseball league operating in 14 cities across eight states from the plains of Kansas to California's Pacific coast in cities without Major or Minor League Baseball teams and is not affiliated with either. Pecos League teams sell tickets, sponsorships, concessions, merchandise and streaming broadcasts as their revenue.

In the Summer of 2010, five men (Ryan Stevens, Donnie Randal, J.R. Smith, Andrew Dunn and Chris Schmidt) met in Van Horn, Texas to discuss options on how to start a league that would include the Big Bend Cowboys and the Las Cruces Vaqueros of the independent Continental League. Dunn owned the Las Cruces franchise while the owner of the Big Bend Cowboys of Alpine, Texas was Frank Snyder, a law professor in Fort Worth.

Continental League commissioner Ron Baron had let everyone know that 2010 would be the last season of play. The Continental League played since 2007 in the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex, Houston and elsewhere in Texas. Dunn agreed to own two of the teams in the new circuit but there was no clear leader of the group so Dunn was named commissioner and remains in that position today. Snyder and his backers wanted a league to play in and to own the Alpine team themselves. The Cowboys are the lone team not owned by the league.

The history of the Continental League was somewhat troubled so it was decided to give the new league a new name. The only team to be carried forward was Las Cruces, which Dunn owned outright. The Big Bend club was disbanded and the Alpine Cowboys were revived as a 501.c.3 non-profit organization. They dropped their Christmas tree colors of green and red for an all-red look. The Cowboys also put the famous West Texas "06" cattle brand on their hat.

The league was officially formed in August 2010 with the Cowboys and Vaqueros and christened the Pecos League of Professional Baseball Clubs after the Pecos River, which runs from Del Rio, Texas to Clovis, New Mexico. Pro ball then returned to Roswell, New Mexico (where Joe Bauman belted a minor league record 72 homers in 1954) after a decades-long absence with a team named the Invaders. Alamogordo, New Mexico assistant city manager Matt McNeile pushed for the former Continental League franchise Coastal Kingfish of Houston to be moved to Alamogordo and named the team the White Sands Pupfish. Dunn agreed to own the Pupfish with support from McNeile and the City of Alamogordo.

After abortive efforts to place teams in Del Rio, Clovis and Bisbee, a fifth franchise was granted to Ruidoso, New Mexico, although Dunn would not operate it. Local commercial painting business owner Clyde Woods leased the team and the Osos were founded. A sixth and final inaugural team went to Carlsbad, New Mexico. Carlsbad would not allow a team to play in any of the city-owned fields, making Bats a travel team in 2011, although a three-game series was played at the Caveman Corral on Father's Day weekend.

The Pecos League lineup was set for 2011: Alpine, Carlsbad, Las Cruces, Roswell, Ruidoso and White Sands. The six teams played 4 days a week in May before going to 7 days a week in June and July. The league also became one of Pointstreak's Pro stats partners for the next 15 years. There would be no designated hitter, meaning pitchers would also bat. Many players wanted a chance to both pitch and hit and the Pecos League remains the only professional loop in America with that rule since the National League adopted the DH in 2022.

From that decidedly humble beginning, the Pecos League has since expanded to 15 clubs in eight states, with three five-team divisions stretching from Kansas, Nebraska, Texas and Oklahoma in the east to Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California in the west.

Between 2011 and 2017, the Pecos League signed players to league contracts. In 2018 Congress passed a bill requiring all leagues that contract their players to pay minimum wage to their players. This no longer allowed the Pecos League to contract players for financial reasons, but has actually increased the money that players receive. Since 2018, players have received money from baseball camps, 50/50 raffles and team activities rather than traditional methods.

Although Kansas City, Monterey and Vallejo have dropped out since last season, the league granted a franchise to Grand Junction, Colorado for 2026, where the Razorback Suckers will play in 10,000-seat Suplizio Field, one of the finest facilities used in independent baseball. Austin rejoins the circuit this year as a Pacific Division travel team.

Teams in the Pecos League wear solid color tackle twill jerseys, no white or grey. Players are required to use MLB-approved bats and Rawlings is the official game ball and the only one permitted in Pecos League games. The league's custom Rawlings ball is known for its durability and longevity and is popular among college programs across the country.

Starting in 2026, Presto Sports will be the official statistics website used for all Pecos League teams, replacing Pointstreak in that role. As well, live video streams of every league game will be handled by the Vimeo site in 2026 after years of affiliation with Meridix.

The Pecos League's explosive offenses are fueled in part by higher altitudes and smaller ballparks, with the Mountain Division featuring an average elevation of 4,870 feet above sea level. Players come from all over the US and across the globe, a combination of rising stars, shooting stars and athletes with stars in their eyes with nearly all having prior college or professional experience. It's a good brand of baseball, with six alumni reaching MLB over the years, and a bargain for fans paying an average of $10 per ticket throughout the league.

Pecos League teams will have 22-man rosters including 10 veteran players during a 54-game regular season in 2026 from May 18 through July 26, followed by an eight-team playoff carrying into August as Tucson seeks a repeat of their 2025 pennant under new manager Gavy Perez-Torres, last year's Mountain Division Most Valuable Player.

2025 PECOS LEAGUE Season in Review

The Pecos League has never been about “business as usual” and the 2025 season was no exception, with a breakout performance by one pitcher and a historic appearance by another. Still, the league saw a fourth pennant from a team appearing in their fifth League Championship series and a pair of veteran batters who continued their dominance at the plate so the more some things change, others seemingly remain the same.

Tucson parlayed a 43-9 record into a Mountain South division title and playoff wins over Pecos and Garden City before topping Pacific champions San Rafael, 2 games to 1 for their third Pecos League championship since 2022. The Saguaros led the loop with a .357 batting average keyed by Mountain Division MVP Gavy Perez-Torres (.364 with 13 homers and 64 RBIs) and Anthony Manisero (.415 with a league-best 45 stolen bases). Tucson’s pitching was solid as well (4.69 ERA) as Derek Cabrera finished with a 6-1 record and a 2.75 ERA.

Two experienced batters turned in yet another strong year at the plate in 2025. Garden City slugger Jason Rooks finished among league leaders by hitting .436 (2nd) with 19 homers (2nd) and 88 RBIs (1st) and now has a .403 average over four indyball seasons. Alpine third baseman James Prockish completed his eighth Pecos League campaign with a .387 mark along with 11 homers and 67 ribbies. Prockish is now the circuit’s all-time leader in several offensive categories to go along with a career batting average of .355.

Not all the action was in the Mountain Division. A pair of Pacific Division pitchers had noteworthy seasons. After taking 2024 off following a desultory 2023 campaign, San Rafael’s Chris Allen returned with a bang last year to post a 7-0 record and lead the Pecos League with a 1.80 ERA, combining with veteran Alex Valasek and rookie Jared Greer to go 20-2 for the division kingpins. In Dublin, Marika Lyszczyk became the first woman to appear in the Pecos League by pitching 4.1 innings over two games, recording a 8.31 ERA with three strikeouts.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION 2025 AWARDS

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Gavy Perez-Torres, Tucson Saguaros

A fan of the hometown Roswell Invaders while growing up in New Mexico, Gavy has gone on to excel with Tucson over the past three years, topping the .320 mark at the plate each season. Last year he led the Saguaros to the Pecos League championship by hitting .364 with 13 homers, 74 RBIs and 18 stolen bases during the regular season while anchoring the Cacti infield at shortstop.

Gavy played college ball at both the University of the Southwest in Hobbs, NM and Lubbock Christian University in Texas prior to joining the Saguaros in 2023. During the offseason, he was named Tucson's manager at age 27 after Sean McNeill stepped down to assume an administrative role in player recruitment for the league office.

HITTER OF THE YEAR

Jason Rooks, Garden City Wind

A top-notch hitter wherever he's played, Jason really turned it on for Garden City in 2025 by batting an eye-popping .436 with 19 homers and 88 RBIs to help propel the Wind to the Mountain Division Championship Series against Tucson's eventual pennant winners. The Atlanta native made his Pecos League debut in 2022 with Trinidad and hit .470 with 22 homers the following season for the Triggers.

Jason was drafted by his hometown Atlanta Braves in 2017 after graduating from high school in nearby Marietta but chose to play juco ball in Alabama before spending the 2020 season at Virginia Tech of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Between stints with Trinidad and Garden City, he hit .295 with 3 homers for Billings of the Pioneer League in 2024.

PITCHER OF THE YEAR

Cutter Smith, Garden City Wind

Good pitching is a rare commodity in the batters paradise of the Pecos League, but Garden City (a league-best team ERA of 3.68) and Cutter Smith were exceptions to the rule. Cutter went 8-0 with a 3.64 ERA for the Wind during the regular season, leading the league in wins while striking out 61 batsmen and issuing just 13 walks over 59.1 innings on the mound as Garden City entered the postseason as the Mountain Division's top seed.

The 6'3" righty grew up 30 miles east of Denver in Bennett, Colorado prior to attending college at NCAA Division II Adams State and Tabor College of the NAIA, where he went 18-5 over two seasons at the Kansas school. Cutter turned pro with Trinidad in 2024, where he was 3-2 with a 4.50 ERA in his Pecos League debut while displaying four pitches in his arsenal.

PACIFIC DIVISION 2025 AWARDS

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Kyle Guerra, San Rafael Pacifics

A key cog during San Rafael's Pecos League pennant run in 2023, Kyle was even better during his return to the Pacifics in 2025 after a season in the Pioneer League. The lefty-swinging centerfielder hit .410 (with a .524 on-base percentage) for the Pacific Division champs, contributing 9 homers, 28 steals and crossing the plate 80 times in just 50 regular season contests.

After graduating from nearby San Leandro High School, Kyle played college ball close to home at Cal State-Monterey Bay, batting .297 and scoring 131 in 205 games over five springs for the Otters. He split his 2024 Pioneer League campaign between Oakland and Yolo, batting .253 that season before coming back to San Rafael last year.

HITTER OF THE YEAR

Andrew Curran, Martinez Sturgeon

Andrew followed up a fine performance at the plate as a rookie in 2024 for Martinez (a .342 average with 15 homers and 55 RBIs for the Sturgeon) with a standout season last year. The Pennsylvanian tortured Pacific Division pitchers with a league-high .443 figure augmented by 16 doubles, 13 homers and 73 ribbies over 54 regular season games. He showed solid plate discipline as well, striking out just 28 times in 219 at bats.

An alum at Souderton Area High School in the Philadelphia suburbs, Andrew stayed in the Keystone State to play at Neumann College in the NCAA DIII Atlantic East conference, batting .296 over three years for the Knights (including .311 in 2023 and .317 in 2024) before joining the professional ranks in the Pecos League following his collegiate career.

PITCHER OF THE YEAR

Chris Allen, San Rafael Pacifics

After taking the 2024 season off in the wake of San Rafael's 2023 Pecos League pennant, Chris returned with a vengeance last year to join veteran Alex Valasek and rookie Jared Greer in giving the Pacifics a combined 20-2 record as the league's most formidable pitching triad. The San Rafael native was a perfect 8-0 for his hometown team with a sparkling 1.80 ERA in 10 starts to help the Pacifics to their third straight Pecos Series appearance.

Chris parlayed a 13-0 record in 2018 at juco College of Marin into a 20th round selection by the Cubs in that year's draft and three summers in their farm system. The 6'4" lefty then spent 2022 and 2023 pitching for three teams in the Pioneer League before his Pecos League debut in late 2023 prior to sitting out the 2024 season. The rest appeared to agree with him.
